Presentation Descriptions

Cleaning Up Your Safety Culture

Safety Culture has several definitions, but understanding the core elements of what drives an establishment to having a positive safety culture is key. There are several key elements that every positive safety culture has embedded in an organization. Whether you are a manufacturer, construction company, or a service establishment, these core elements are universal for a successful organization. The focus of this presentation (and discussion) is on these core elements for a course of action.

Common Mistakes to Avoid When Managing a Crisis

A crisis disrupts your organization's daily operations. When managing a crisis so many elements can go wrong, but those who successfully navigate these situations avoid common mistakes. During this session participants will learn the four most common mistakes and how to successfully overcome these challenges to strengthen personal and corporate brands.

Impairment in the Workplace

Supervisor Next Steps & Employee Drug & Alcohol Awareness: Educates PA employers and supervisors on the tools and techniques needed to identify and document impairment in the workplace and best practices while executing reasonable suspicion. Equips employees across the commonwealth with the information, resources and tools needed to promote healthy substance-free lifestyles within their workplace, home and community.

Industrial Hygiene - It's Not Brushing Your Teeth at Work

The presentation will highlight reasons to engage an Industrial Hygienist will help employers to achieve compliance and promote worker health. Some programs are apparent, and some are often overlooked.

OSHA Update

Although much of OSHA's recent focus has been on COVID prevention and mitigation, the agency has been conducting inspections, developing an Agency Management Plan and working on its Regulatory Agenda. During this session the participants will hear what OSHA has been doing locally and what the agency is looking at on a national scale currently and in the future.
